Item 8.01. Other Events

On June 20, 2011, Pacific Gas and Electric Company (“Utility”), a subsidiary of PG&E Corporation, and the Consumer Protection and Safety Division (“CPSD”) of the California Public Utilities Commission (“CPUC”) requested that the CPUC approve a proposed stipulation to resolve the CPUC’s investigation of the natural gas explosion and fire that occurred on December 24, 2008 in a residential home in Rancho Cordova, California (“Rancho Cordova accident”). On November 19, 2010, the CPUC issued its order to investigate the Rancho Cordova accident based on the CPSD’s allegations that the Utility violated applicable laws pertaining to natural gas operating and maintenance practices and procedures. Under the stipulation, the Utility has admitted to violations of law and has agreed to pay a penalty of $26 million to the State General Fund within twenty days after CPUC approval. The Utility also has agreed to pay for the CPSD’s expenses incurred in connection with the proceeding and that it will not seek to recover the penalty or the amounts paid to the CPSD from customers. PG&E Corporation and the Utility do not expect that these amounts will have a material adverse impact on their results of operations or financial condition, after consideration of amounts already accrued through March 31, 2011.

The National Transportation Safety Board (“NTSB”) investigated the Rancho Cordova accident and in May 2010 issued its report concluding that the probable cause of the accident was the Utility’s use of a section of unmarked and out-of-specification polyethylene pipe with inadequate wall thickness that allowed gas to leak from the mechanical coupling installed during a repair made on September 21, 2006. The Utility filed a report with the CPUC on February 17, 2011 which stated that the Utility agreed with the NTSB’s conclusions about the probable cause of the accident.

PG&E Corporation and the Utility are unable to predict whether the CPUC will approve the stipulation.
