APRA clarifies new capital buffers to be applied to Australia's systemically important banks

On December 23, 2013, the Australian Prudential Regulation Authority (APRA) provided more detail over how it would apply the Basel Committee on Banking Supervision's (BCBS) capital requirements for Domestically Systemically Important Banks (D-SIBs).

Under the approach, APRA will increase the capital buffers required under its current capital arrangements by one percentage point. APRA have determined that no phase-in period will apply and Westpac will need to comply with the new rules on January 1, 2016. These updated rules will see APRA's minimum capital requirement for the common equity tier 1 ratio unchanged (currently at 4.5%) but the additional capital buffers will rise from 2.5% to 3.5%.

Westpac's common equity tier 1 ratio, measured using APRA methodology at September 30, 2013, was 9.1% and accordingly the Group is well placed to meet these updated requirements by the implementation date.

Following these announced changes Westpac will review its preferred capital levels noting that there is potential for the additional capital conservation buffer to substitute, in part, for existing management buffers. This review will take place over 2014.
