GILAT CONTINUES BUSINESS EXPANSION IN LATIN AMERICA AND CARIBBEAN WITH MILESTONES IN NICARAGUA AND HAITI
DEPLOYMENT OF NICARAGUA'S LARGEST SATELLITE TELEPHONY NETWORK IS COMPLETE

Petah Tikva, Israel, March 20, 2003 - Gilat Satellite Networks Ltd. (Nasdaq: GILTF) today announced it has completed deployment of a fixed rural satellite telephony network for Empresa Nicaraguense de Telecomunicaciones (Enitel) to serve 170 communities throughout Nicaragua. The network is the largest known deployment of satellite rural telephony in Nicaragua.

The new Enitel network, based on Gilat's DialAw@y IP VSAT product, serves public payphone and fax kiosks, supporting the needs of agricultural workers and other inhabitants of Nicaragua's most remote villages who were living without basic communications services. Nearly 100 of the VSAT units are operated using solar power. Under terms of the agreement, Gilat is providing Enitel with equipment and turnkey implementation of the VSAT network. In the future, Enitel expects to use the network to provide high-speed Internet connectivity to many of those sites.

Enitel President Salvador Quintanilla Vanegas said, "VSAT networks are by far the most superior technology for bringing reliable, cost-effective telecommunications services to rural populations. Naturally, when we think of satellite telephony, we think of Gilat. Gilat's technology is perfectly suited to our specifications and will enable us to serve many thousands of citizens in this region."

Gilat also announced it has been selected by International Satellite Teleport (INTERSAT) to provide a 200-site broadband satellite communications network in Haiti. INTERSAT expects to use Gilat's Skystar Advantage(TM) VSAT equipment and central satellite hub system to provide shared-hub services to companies in a variety of industries, as well as government agencies.

INTERSAT Regional Vice President of Marketing Klaus Eberwein said, "We intend to use the new VSAT network for a wide range of applications in Haiti, including distance education, law enforcement, financial services and high-speed, low-cost Internet connectivity. Gilat's commitment to the Latin American and Caribbean markets, and award-winning technology, had a strong influence on our decision to select them as our VSAT provider."

Samer Salameh, CEO of Gilat's rStar subsidiary said, "These two milestones provide further proof of our expansion in the growing market for VSAT services in Latin America and the Caribbean. Our agreement with INTERSAT will bring reliable services to businesses and government agencies that require independence from the Haiti's terrestrial communications infrastructure. By working successfully with Enitel, we were able to meet their obligations to the Nicaraguan government and to citizens throughout the country."
