OAO Tatneft comments on withdrawal of its credit rating by Standard & Poor's

29 August 2006

On 25 August 2006 Standard & Poor's (S&P) announced the withdrawal of the credit rating of OAO Tatneft, in the opinion of S&P, a continuing lack of information. OAO Tatneft is surprised at S&P's decision and believes its credit rating is not justified, given its recent increased financial disclosure, active engagement with investors and transparency. However, the company underlines that it respects S&P's policy in taking decisions.

The press-release regarding withdrawal of the company's credit rating distributed by S&P says that the lack of information on the company's consolidated financial position and its strategy". The company has spent the third year in succession Tatneft has substantially delayed publishing its audited U.S. GAAP financial statements, belated compared with those of local peers. The 2004 accounts were published in June 2006, but the 2005 accounts are not available. The nature of relationships with the government of the Republic of Tatarstan (BB-/S&P's rating, which is further unclear and there is a lack of clarity regarding financing of the major Nizhnekamsk refinery (with a total cost of $4.8 billion)".

The Company has indeed delayed release of audited consolidated financial statements of Tatneft Group in its annual report on Form 20-F for 2005 with the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission because of the delay in the US GAAP financial statements for 2003 and 2004. The above-mentioned delays were primarily caused by the transactions involving Tatneft Group companies reflected in the US GAAP consolidated financial statements, which was completed only in beginning of June 2005. The reasons for the investigation, and the results of the investigation have been discussed by the company in numerous press-releases. The US GAAP consolidated financial statements for 2005 are currently being audited by an independent auditor, and the company expects the completion of the audit by the end of 2005. OAO Tatneft is planning to announce a more detailed timetable for completion of the audit of financial statements for 2005 in the first half of September 2006.
