PLAYSTATION(R)3 REACHES CUMULATIVE SHIPMENT OF 1 MILLION UNITS IN JAPAN

Tokyo, January 16, 2007 - Sony Computer Entertainment Inc. (SCEI) today announced that cumulative shipment of its PLAYSTATION(R)3 (PS3(TM)) computer entertainment system reached 1 million units in Japan as of today, January 16th, 2007. Compared to its predecessor PlayStation(R) platforms, PS3 is the fastest to reach cumulative shipment of 2 million units worldwide. This achievement comes in only 2 months from its launch in November 2006 in Japan and North America. PS3 platform continues to expand rapidly along with its exciting lineup of packaged software titles as well as downloadable content and services delivered through the network.

On the software front, demand for PS3 titles were also high during the holiday season and with popular titles such as Resistance: Fall of Man(TM) from SCE Worldwide Studios (SCE WWS) as well as attractive lineup from licensed developers and publishers. Cumulative software shipment in Japan and North America combined reached 5 million units as of December 2006. More and more powerful new titles are expected to be released continuously from both SCE WWS and licensed developers and publishers, which will further demonstrate the power of PS3.

PS3 continues to evolve, expanding its possibilities by adding new features via continuous system software updates, including functions such as "Remote Play", which allows users new ways of enjoying content by connecting PS3 and PSP(R) (PlayStation(R)Portable) as well as playback of various content through the network. More than 500 thousand users have gone on-line with PS3 in Japan and North America combined, enjoying the latest PS3 network games as well as exchanging messages and video chatting on-line.

PLAYSTATION(R)Store, an on-line shop on PLAYSATION Network, offers a wealth of content from downloadable PS3 games, additional features for existing PS3 packaged games and downloadable PlayStation(R) archive games for PSP, to free game demos, movie trailers and trial versions of upcoming PS3 game titles. In particular, Gran Turismo(TM) HD Concept, a free downloadable game made available on December 24th, 2006 is highly popular among PLAYSATION Network users counting more than 300 thousand downloads in Japan and North America in 20 days since its release.

SCEI will continue to expand the PlayStation(R)2 and PSP platforms, which already shipped more than 110 million and 20 million units worldwide
