GOL's Revenue Increases 186 Percent on Argentina Routes in 2006

Sao Paulo, March 19, 2007 GOL Linhas Aéreas Inteligentes (NYSE: GOL and Bovespa: GOLL4), Brazil's low-cost, low-fare airline, ended 2006 with a 186 percent increase in revenue on its Argentinean routes -- from R$ 50.8 million in 2005 to R$ 145.2 million last year -- and represented approximately four percent of GOL's total sales in 2006. Approximately 375,000 tickets were sold in 2006 for flights between Brazil and Argentina, up 128 percent from 165,000 in 2005.

GOL's successful operations in Argentina demonstrate the strong demand for high quality air transportation and accessible fares in South America, says Tarcisio Gargioni, Vice president of Marketing and Services at GOL. Flights to Argentina, GOL's first international destination, began in December 2004, with just two daily flights to Buenos Aires.

The success of the initiative led the Company to expand of the number of destinations served in Argentina: flights to Cordoba, the second-largest city in Argentina, and Rosario, began in January 2006. Currently, GOL operates 56 flights per week-- eight flights a day-- to Buenos Aires. The Company offers six flights per week (available daily except Saturdays) to Cordoba, and four flights per week (on Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays) to Rosario.

In September 2006, GOL launched flights from Buenos Aires to Santiago, Chile, offering three daily flights between the two cities. The Company also began flights from Buenos Aires to Asuncion, Paraguay, in December 2006, operating one daily flight between the two Mercosul capitals. On February 14, GOL began daily flights from Buenos Aires, Argentina, to Lima, Peru, via Santiago, Chile, connecting three important South American cities.

Strong revenue growth attests to increased demand for, and satisfaction with, GOL's services. A customer survey of GOL's passengers flying to and from Argentina last year found that 28 percent considered GOL their preferred airline, and 54 percent would recommend the airline to their friends, relatives and co-workers.
