Update regarding Nokia, Huawei, ZTE and LG USITC Proceeding (337-TA-800)

On July 9, 2012, in connection with the United States International Trade Commission ("USITC") investigation initiated by InterDigital Inc.'s wholly owned subsidiaries InterDigital Communications, LLC, InterDigital Technology Corporation and IPR Licensing, Inc. (collectively, "InterDigital") against Nokia Corporation and Nokia Inc. (collectively, "Nokia"), Huawei Technologies Co., Ltd., FutureWei Technologies, Inc. d/b/a Huawei Technologies (USA) and Huawei Device USA, Inc. (collectively, "Huawei"), ZTE Corporation and ZTE (USA) Inc. (collectively, "ZTE") and LG Electronics, Inc., LG Electronics U.S.A., Inc. and LG Electronics Mobilecomm U.S.A., Inc. (collectively, "LG" and together with Nokia, Huawei and ZTE, "Respondents"), InterDigital received a Notice from the USITC stating that the USITC has determined not to review the Administrative Law Judge's ("ALJ") June 4, 2012 Initial Determination ("ID") granting LG's motion to terminate the investigation as to LG on the basis that a claim by LG that LG is licensed under an expired patent license agreement between InterDigital and LG is potentially arbitrable. As a result, the ALJ's ID has become the Final Determination of the USITC on this issue, and the investigation has been terminated as to LG. InterDigital has 60 days from issuance of the USITC's Notice to appeal if it chooses to do so. The decision is limited to LG, does not affect the other Respondents in the USITC investigation, and is not a ruling in favor of LG on the merits of LG's allegation of an existing license. LG Electronics, Inc. and InterDigital are currently involved in a pending arbitration filed by LG Electronics, Inc. with the American Arbitration Association on March 19, 2012. In that arbitration, LG Electronics, Inc. seeks a declaration that it is licensed to certain patents owned by InterDigital, including the patents asserted against LG in the USITC investigation.
