However, the number of financial leasing companies has increased drastically and market competition has intensified, thus increasing the risk of market competition. The Transaction is instrumental in further optimizing the industry structure of the Company and promoting the effective integration of industry and finance which is favourable for reducing the capital costs of the Company. At the same time, the Company will be entitled to the profits generated by Tiancheng Leasing Company in the future operation according to the capital contribution ratio. In the long term, it will have a positive impact on enhancing the capital operation level of the Company as a listed company, increasing profitability and promoting the development of core business, which is in the interests of the shareholders as a whole. After completion of the Transaction, the Company will not consolidate its financial statements with those of Tiancheng Leasing Company and accordingly the Transaction will not have a material impact on the financial conditions of the Company.
