Media Release

Credit Suisse announces a comprehensive and final settlement regarding all outstanding U.S. cross-border matters, including agreements with the U.S. Department of Justice, the New York State Department of Financial Services, the Board of Governors of the U.S. Federal Reserve System and, as previously announced, the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission

Credit Suisse agrees to pay USD 2,815 million (CHF 2,510 million); these settlements, net of existing provisions, will result in an after-tax charge of CHF 1,598 million to be booked in the second quarter of 2014

Credit Suisse's Look-through Basel III CET1 ratio would have been 9.3% at the end of 1Q14 had this charge been applied at that time; Credit Suisse expects to exceed 10% by end-2014

The settlement includes a guilty plea entered into by Credit Suisse's Swiss banking entity, Credit Suisse AG

The resolution of this matter was coordinated with its lead global regulators, and Credit Suisse expects no impact on its licenses, nor any material impact on its operational or business capabilities

Zurich, May 19, 2014 Credit Suisse today announced a comprehensive and final settlement regarding all outstanding matters relating to the former cross-border private banking business with U.S. clients.

Brady Dougan, CEO of Credit Suisse, said: "We deeply regret the past misconduct that led to this settlement. The US cross-border matter represented the most significant and longstanding regulatory and litigation issue for Credit Suisse. Having this matter fully resolved is an important step forward for us. We have seen no material impact on our business resulting from the heightened public attention on this issue in the past several weeks. We want to thank our clients and employees for their support as we continued to work through this matter and brought it to a conclusion. We can now focus on the future and give our full attention to executing our strategy."

On financial impact, capital position and dividend policy, he added: "The settlement will reduce our second quarter net income by CHF 1,598 million. If the charge arising from the settlement had been applied at the end of the first quarter 2014, our Look-through Basel III CET1 ratio would have been 9.3%, rather than 10.0%. We intend to reduce our risk-weighted assets to at or below the level of end 2013 as well as take other capital actions, including the sale of surplus real estate and other non-core assets. These measures alone should be sufficient to return our Look-through Basel III CET1 ratio to 10% by year-end 2014. Furthermore, once this 10% CET1 ratio has been achieved and while continuing to accrete capital towards our 11% long-term target, we intend to return approximately half our earnings to shareholders through our annual distributions.”

The final settlement announced today, totaling USD 2,815 million (CHF 2,510 million), is comprised of the following components:

- USD 2,000 million for the U.S. Department of Justice (including USD 196 million for the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission as previously announced in February 2014). One third is allocated to the U.S. Internal Revenue Service.
 - USD 715 million for the New York State Department of Financial Services
 - USD 100 million for the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System

In prior quarters, Credit Suisse had taken litigation provisions totaling CHF 892 million related to this matter. As a result, the pre-tax impact of the final settlement in the second quarter 2014 will be CHF 1,618 million and the after-tax impact will be CHF 1,598 million.

Credit Suisse AG entered a guilty plea to one count of conspiracy to assist U.S. customers in presenting false income tax returns to the U.S. Internal Revenue Service in violation of Title 18, U.S. Code section 371 in connection with the former Swiss-based cross border private banking business.

Cautionary statement regarding forward-looking information

This press release contains statements that constitute forward-looking statements. In addition, in the future we, and others on our behalf, may make statements that constitute forward-looking statements. Such forward-looking statements may include, without limitation, statements relating to the following:

- our plans, objectives or goals;
 - our future economic performance or prospects;
 - the potential effect on our future performance of certain contingencies; and
 - assumptions underlying any such statements.
- Words such as “believes,” “anticipates,” “expects,” “intends” and “plans” and similar expressions are intended to identify forward-looking statements but are not the exclusive means of identifying such statements. We do not intend to update these forward-looking statements except as may be required by applicable securities laws. By their very nature, forward-looking statements involve inherent risks and uncertainties, both general and specific, and risks exist that predictions, forecasts, projections and other outcomes described or implied in forward-looking statements will not be achieved. We caution you that a number of important factors could cause results to differ materially from the plans, objectives, expectations, estimates and intentions expressed in such forward-looking statements. These factors include:
- the ability to maintain sufficient liquidity and access capital markets;
 - market and interest rate fluctuations and interest rate levels;
 - the strength of the global economy in general and the strength of the economies of the countries in which we conduct our operations, in particular the risk of continued slow economic recovery or downturn in the US or other developed countries in 2014 and beyond;
 - the direct and indirect impacts of continuing deterioration or slow recovery in residential and commercial real estate markets;
 - adverse rating actions by agencies in respect of sovereign issuers, structured credit products or other credit-related exposures;
 - the ability to achieve our objectives, including improved performance, reduced risks, lower costs, and more efficient use of capital;
 - the ability of counterparties to meet their obligations to us;
 - the effects of, and changes in, fiscal, monetary, trade and tax policies, and currency fluctuations;

- political and social developments, including war, civil unrest or terrorist activity;
- the possibility of foreign exchange controls, expropriation, nationalizations or confiscations in countries where we conduct operations;
 - operational factors such as systems failure, human error, or the failure to implement procedures properly;
- actions taken by regulators with respect to our business and practices in one or more of the countries where we conduct operations;
 - the effects of changes in laws, regulations or accounting policies or practices;
 - competition in geographic and business areas in which we conduct our operations;
 - the ability to retain and recruit qualified personnel;
 - the ability to maintain our reputation and promote our brand;
 - the ability to increase market share and control expenses;
 - technological changes;
- the timely development and acceptance of our new products and services and the perceived overall value of these products and services by users;
- acquisitions, including the ability to integrate businesses successfully, and divestitures, including the ability to sell non-core assets;
 - the adverse resolution of litigation and other contingencies;
 - the ability to achieve our cost efficiency goals and cost targets; and
 - our success at managing the risks involved in the foregoing.

We caution you that the foregoing list of important factors is not exclusive. When evaluating forward-looking statements, you should carefully consider the foregoing factors and other uncertainties and events, including the information set forth in “Risk Factors” in I – Information on the company in our Annual Report 2013.
