This filing consists of a Merck & Co., Inc. ("Merck") Global Human Health communication template, first used on May 13, 2009, in connection with the proposed transaction between Merck and Schering-Plough Corporation.

Global Human Health Communication Template

Across GHH over the past two years, we have done extensive work to put the customer at the center, introduce our new commercial models, become more lean and nimble, build for growth in emerging markets and expand our potential offerings through business development. The pending merger with Schering-Plough, if approved, will provide us with a broader portfolio, pipeline and global presence to drive growth and resume a leadership standing in the industry.

This combination of our longer-term strategy work with the merger enables us to be very clear as an organization about what we need to do right now. Our entire organization should be focused on three things: driving our business in 2009, integration, and compliance. And effective immediately, we are taking work out of the system to be sure that this is what people are focused on.

Across GHH, we set a goal to stop or delay 75% of the strategic projects, including the staffing and funding that accompany those projects, if those projects are not related to driving our business in 2009 or compliance. For example, in EMEAC, where 28 markets have already rolled out new commercial models (NCM), we will not implement NCM in any new markets until after the merger. In the U.S., we continue to work on our obligations under the Physician Payment Sunshine Act, which is an initiative related to compliance, and will delay the initiatives looking at the customization of promotional resources.

In our region/division, we will continue work on the following strategic initiatives:

In our region/division, we are stopping work on the following (x) of (x) strategic initiatives:

As a leadership team, we appreciate how much work has gone into many of these initiatives, and want to thank the people on these teams for their accomplishments to date and for their flexibility in moving on to work on our reprioritized list of initiatives. Once the merger has been completed, we will re-evaluate which of the initiatives we are delaying or stopping are still necessary in light of the strengths, challenges and opportunities for the combined company -- with the understanding that we must continue to prioritize our work based on the needs of our customers and our business.

Given the broad scope of work for GHH with our diverse businesses around the world, it's not always possible to have the organization align around just a few things. However, right now, we can -- and we must. Our organization must focus on our 2009 objectives, starting with this quarter, to make sure that Merck is the strongest company possible heading into the merger. Today and every day, please ask yourself: is what I am doing related to driving our business with our customers, the integration, or compliance? If the answer is no, then please consider whether and how that work needs to be done.
