[City National Bank Letterhead]

Russell Goldsmith Chairman of the Board
 Chief Executive Officer

With 2015 fully underway, I'm writing to let you know, as I do each year, where City National stands today and to share our thoughts on the economy and the year ahead.

First, I want to thank you for your relationship with City National and for the opportunity we have to help you on The way up®. Without you and our many other extraordinary clients, City National's past 60 years of growth and success would not have been possible. It is you, and valued clients like you, who have enabled us to build City National into the premier private and business bank it is today.

As you probably know, City National recently announced its agreement to merge with the Royal Bank of Canada (RBC). With assets approaching $800 billion, RBC is the largest financial institution in Canada and the fifth largest in North America. It is one of the world's safest and strongest banks, with credit ratings that are better than those of almost all U.S. financial institutions. Importantly, RBC is truly a premier company, with a culture and a client-centered value proposition that are remarkably similar to City National's.

For you and all of our clients, nothing will really change. The same colleagues who serve you today will continue to do so with the same high level of service and capabilities, and your accounts will not change.

Over time, this merger will make it possible for City National to better serve you and all of our clients. It will add to our private and business banking resources and offerings and our wealth management capabilities. It will give our clients access to RBC's investment banking expertise and enable us to take advantage of RBC's strong presence in Canada and its resources in the United Kingdom and Asia.

Continuity is an important element of this merger. City National will continue to operate as it does today, with the same great team of bankers, systems, capabilities and accounts, and the same credit process and standards. I will continue to serve as Chairman and CEO – remaining at the bank along with our current management team – and the company will remain headquartered in Los Angeles, meeting its commitments to all of the communities we serve.

We expect the merger to close in the fourth quarter of this year, following regulatory and shareholder approval, and we will keep you posted along the way. It's business as usual at City National, so let me now give you my annual update on the bank and what we expect for the year ahead.

An Update on City National

I'm pleased to tell you that City National recently concluded the most successful year in its history. The company has more than $32 billion in assets, and it has now been profitable for 87 consecutive quarters – almost 22 years. Loans and deposits grew at double-digit rates in 2014. Client investment assets increased as well. We welcomed new clients into the bank and strengthened relationships with many of the individuals and businesses that have banked and invested with us for years. At the same time, we continued to invest significantly in the company's future, with new talent, new technology and new capabilities to better serve you.

These investments continue. In 2015, for example, we will introduce:

- Apple Pay™. With City National's credit and debit cards, this spring, you will be able to use Apple's latest iPhone® or even the soon-to-be-launched Apple Watch™ to conveniently pay at many of the nation's top retailers. We will have superior security, including world-class tokenization security, protecting every transaction.
 - New City National Crystal Visa Infinite® Credit Card. City National will be one of the first banks in the United States to offer this brand-new, high-end Visa® credit card with all of the features of our top-of-the-line Crystal Card plus many new benefits, including additional air travel benefits and upgrades at luxury hotels. At City National, of course, this also comes with an embedded security chip. The City National Crystal Visa Infinite Credit Card is expected to become available in May.

- City National Online will have a dedicated app for iPhones and Androids™ so our clients can receive the full City National Online personal banking experience on their phones. Using our secure app, you will be able to view not only your deposit accounts, but also your credit cards, trusts and investments. Our new app should be available in the second half of this year.
- City National Online for businesses. The upcoming addition of City National Online for businesses is also scheduled for the second half of the year. It will allow you to manage your personal and business accounts in a single location. This new resource is being built with unique, self-service features and new security capabilities.

The Economy and Investment Outlook

In 2014, America's economic recovery became significantly more self-sustaining, as we had anticipated. As the year came to an end, America's fourth-quarter GDP grew 2.6 percent. For the year as a whole, it was up 2.4 percent, higher than the 2.2 percent growth rate of 2013.

Loan demand has been rising steadily, and the nation's unemployment rate is just 5.7 percent. 2014 was the best year for new job creation since 1999, and consumer sentiment is near its highest level in more than 10 years.

The sales of cars and light trucks, an important benchmark of consumer spending, had a record year in 2014, and auto sales in January grew nearly 14 percent from the same period last year. On balance, the huge drop in oil prices will help the U.S. consumer and our economy.

Demand for new housing was stronger. Construction hiring reached a nine-year high, growing at nearly twice the rate of the general economy.

In 2014, the Federal Reserve successfully and smoothly completed its historic bond purchase program (QE3), and most observers now expect the Federal Reserve Board to increase short-term interest rates sometime in the second half of this year.

U.S. equities delivered another year of solid returns despite significant volatility in other parts of the world. Bruce Simon, City National Rochdale's chief investment officer, is positive about U.S. stocks, but cautions equity investors to expect lower-than-average returns in the short term as a result of high valuations and slower economic growth overseas. He continues to see good long-term opportunities for patient investors, particularly in some of our specialized bond and equity strategies, which had a truly great year for our clients in 2014.

Overall, City National enters 2015 encouraged by the strengthening U.S. economy, but acknowledging the uncertainties resulting from higher geopolitical risks. We are committed to serving you and all of our clients with the same high level of service and excellence you have enjoyed over the years, and we are enthused about what the merger with RBC will enable us to do for our clients in the future.

Conclusion

As always, my colleagues and I very much appreciate the confidence that you have placed in City National and are here to provide you with the financial strategies and solutions that best meet your needs and objectives. All of us truly value our relationship with you and want you to know that we always welcome and value your comments, requests, questions, suggestions, opportunities and referrals.

We wish you a very happy, healthy and prosperous new year.

Thank you very much.

Sincerely,

Russell Goldsmith
