Barrick Sees Continuing High Gold Prices
Offer for Placer Dome Remains Only Compelling Choice for Placer Dome Shareholders

In a presentation today to the Scotia Capital Precious Metals and Base Metals Conference in Toronto, Barrick Gold Corporation updated conference participants on its view of the gold market, how it is delivering value from assets, people and projects, and on recent developments in its offer for Placer Dome Inc.

Greg Wilkins, Barrick President and Chief Executive Officer, who previously indicated that he wouldn't be surprised if gold hit $500 by year end, said the rally in gold prices was sustainable as the underlying factors driving gold prices to $500 are still compelling going forward. The industry has seen mine supply of gold declining and demand for gold steadily rising, and the outlook remains positive. This bodes well for Barrick as it continues to benefit from its new mines delivering results to its bottom line.

Barrick has completed construction of three new mines in 2005 which are expected to drive an approximate 10% increase in production over 2004. A fourth mine, Cowal in Australia, is expected to begin operations in early 2006.

Mr. Wilkins said that the Company expects to meet its original 2005 production and cash cost guidance of between 5.4 and 5.5 million ounces of gold at total cash costs of about $225 per ounce. Barrick is the only senior producer not to revise its original guidance downward this year; moreover, this is the third year in a row that the Company has met its targets despite inflationary cost pressures. Barrick has the lowest cash cost structure among the senior producers.

In speaking about its offer for Placer Dome, Mr. Wilkins said that it was full and fair and nothing that Placer Dome has said in response to our offer was new or unexpected. We see no reason to amend our bid one iota. Barrick is already offering a substantial 27% premium. He added, that in Barrick's valuation of Placer Dome, Barrick expected Placer Dome to make announcements such as today's regarding Bald Mountain. Barrick expects it will see a series of Placer Dome announcements before Barrick's offer expires on December 20, 2005, unless withdrawn or extended.

PRESS RELEASE

Barrick believes that Placer Dome's shareholders may well find it strange that its management would seriously consider a stand-alone/restructuring strategy and forego a multi-billion dollar premium for their Company especially in light of their own admission that the next year or two would be difficult for Placer Dome.

Barrick also dismissed as misleading Placer Dome's recent assertions about Barrick. For example, Mr. Wilkins noted that in order to contrast production profiles, Placer Dome used eleven different analyst estimates for 2006 production for both themselves and Barrick. Placer Dome based their projected Barrick production for 2010 entirely on one analyst's estimate. Barrick itself has never provided guidance for 2010. Mr. Wilkins added that this does not clearly reflect the potential of future production from Barrick's quality assets or its ability to deliver value for our shareholders.

Mr. Wilkins drew attention to Barrick's established track record of building nine projects in the last decade as compared with two by Placer Dome. We believe that Placer Dome and Barrick shareholders can benefit from our demonstrated expertise of successfully bringing large scale projects on line. Barrick also indicated that it is targeting approval of its Pascua-Lama project in Chile/Argentina for the first quarter 2006 and expects to proceed with construction in 2006.

Mr. Wilkins questioned Placer Dome's assertions about hedging as being misplaced: Placer Dome and Barrick have virtually identical size hedge positions. Barrick has 14% of its reserves hedged as compared to Placer Dome's 13%. In point of fact, we have reduced our position since December 31, 2001, by over 11 million ounces or 46%, while Placer Dome has increased its hedge position over the same period.

Executive Vice President of Exploration and Corporate Development, Alex Davidson, outlined the exploration opportunities available to the combined companies: We are truly excited with the opportunity to combine forces to develop an unrivalled pipeline of projects and exploration properties. Mr. Davidson underlined the importance of Barrick's consistent investment in exploration which currently stands at $120 million for 2005 and the synergies available from the companies' land positions around the globe.

Mr. Wilkins concluded the presentation by summarizing the Barrick Advantage in its bid for Placer Dome, including:

Execution timing no shareholder vote required;

All-Canadian bid no Investment Canada approval;

Strong partner in Goldcorp resulting in additional synergies;

Canadian bidder can implement tax-efficient asset sales and restructurings;

Lower on-going tax rate for purchaser domiciled in Canada;

Ability to manage and reduce hedge position effectively; and Significant cash component in the bid.

Barrick's vision is to be the world's best gold company by finding, developing and producing quality reserves in a profitable and socially responsible manner.

About the Offer

Barrick's offer was announced on October 31, 2005. Barrick's take-over bid circular and related documents were filed with the securities regulatory authorities in Canada and the United States on November 10, 2005. Placer Dome shareholders are advised to read the take-over bid circular as it contains important information including the terms and conditions of the offer and the procedures for depositing shares.
