Fellow Shareholders:

In fiscal 2007 we continued to advance our vision of practical spintronics leadership. As the charts show, our business strategy drove growth, profits, cash flow, and liquidity:

Product sales increased 73%
Net income increased 166%
Cash and marketable securities increased $7.4 million

Other fiscal 2007 highlights included expanding our product lines, expanding product distribution, strengthening our intellectual property portfolio, and investing in the future through R&D and equipment.

Unique Products

Our spintronic sensors and coupler products are smaller, faster, and more precise than other products. New products in the past year include the ultra-high speed S-Series Couplers, Micro-Small Outline Packaged digital couplers, and new sensors for medical devices.

Expanded Distribution

Our products are now available through distributors in more than 75 countries. We added leading distributors in the past year including Zhichuan Information Tech in China, Takumi Shoji Co. in Japan, Elfa AB in Europe, and Newark InOne in North America.

Strengthened Intellectual Property

Six U.S. patents issued in fiscal 2007 and three thus far in fiscal 2008 bring our total issued U.S. patents to 44. Most of our patents relate to MRAM, a technology we believe could revolutionize memory by combining the speed of SRAM, the density of DRAM, and the nonvolatility of flash memory.

Investments in the Future

Growth has allowed us to invest more in the future. In the past fiscal year we increased R&D expenditures 26% toward our goal of developing revolutionary new products. Contract R&D funding also helps advance our technology. Capital expenditure increased considerably in the past year, and we believe those investments will allow us to manufacture more products more efficiently, especially our smallest products.

A Bright Future

We entered fiscal 2008 with a strong balance sheet, products that are in demand, and an excellent intellectual property portfolio. I am proud of NVE's accomplishments in the past year, and we look forward to a bright future.

Sincerely,

/s/ DANIEL A. BAKER
