ALSTOM is today hosting a presentation in Paris for investors and analysts at which Patrick Kron, Chairman & Chief Executive Officer, will detail ALSTOM's new action plan. The plan is designed to: improve the Company's operational performance; deal with the impact of past operational issues; and reduce its high level of debt.

Patrick Kron commented: "ALSTOM's core businesses in the global energy and transport markets offer solid long-term growth prospects and attractive opportunities. With its strong market positions, technology leadership, broad commercial presence and large installed base, the Company is strategically well-positioned.

"However, we must face today's reality. We need to adapt to the power market, where demand has significantly weakened over the past year, to address the additional costs of past operational problems, and materially strengthen our financial structure.
