NARRATIVE

State below in reasonable detail the reasons why Form 10-K, 20-F, 11-K, 10-Q, 10-D, N-SAR, N-CSR or the transition report portion thereof could not be filed within the prescribed time period. (Attach extra sheets if needed.)

The Registrant has been unable to file its Annual Report on Form 20-F for the year ended December 31, 2013 (the "2013 Form 20-F") by April 30, 2014 due to an outstanding comment that the Company received from the staff of the Securities and Exchange Commission (the "SEC") regarding its Annual Report on Form 20-F for the fiscal year ended December 31, 2012.

In a comment letter initially received by the Company on December 11, 2013 in connection with SEC staff's periodic review of the Company's reports, the staff of the SEC requested, among other things, additional information regarding the basis for the change in functional currency from New Israeli Shekels (NIS) to U.S. dollars (USD) that the Company effected as of July 1, 2012. The Company responded to such comment letter on January 16, 2014 and responded on March 6, 2014 to an additional comment letter dated February 20, 2014 seeking further information on the same topic. The outstanding comment on this topic was contained in a further letter dated March 28, 2014 and requested that the Company revise its financial statements for the year ended December 31, 2012 using the NIS as its functional currency or, alternatively, explain to the SEC the facts and circumstances that justify the change of its functional currency as of July 1, 2012. The Company is continuing its discussions with the SEC regarding this matter as of the date of this report.

The Registrant's 2013 Form 20-F, including the required financial statements, are otherwise complete; however, because the Company's continuing discussions with the SEC staff regarding the change to its functional currency, the Company is unable to conclude that its financial statements are in final form.

The Company hopes to conclude its discussions and to receive a response from the SEC staff by May 15, 2014 although it cannot provide any assurance that will be the case. The Company hopes to be able to file its Form 20-F within the extension period provided pursuant to Rule 12b-25 if it determines that its functional currency after June 30, 2012 was correctly changed from the NIS to the USD. In such case, the financial statements in such Form 20-F will be consistent with the financial information previously published by the Company. Conversely, the Company expects to require a number of additional weeks in order to revise and finalize its financial statements if the Company determines that the change in its functional currency as of June 30, 2012 was incorrect. Under either circumstance, the Company will file the 2013 Form 20-F as promptly as practicable following resolution of the SEC's comment.

(2) Have all other periodic reports required under Section 13 or 15(d) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 or Section 30 of the Investment Company Act of 1940 during the preceding 12 months or for such shorter period that the registrant was required to file such report(s) been filed? If the answer is no, identify report(s).

Yes No

(3) Is it anticipated that any significant change in results of operations from the corresponding period for the last fiscal year will be reflected by the earnings statements to be included in the subject report or portion thereof?

Yes No

If so: attach an explanation of the anticipated change, both narratively and quantitatively, and, if appropriate, state the reasons why a reasonable estimate of the results cannot be made.

The Registrant announced its results of operations for the fourth quarter and year ended December 31, 2013 in an earnings press release dated February 12, 2014 furnished as Exhibit 99.1 to its Form 6-K dated February 12, 2014. The Registrant refers investors to that exhibit.

The impact of a change in functional currency would not have any impact on the cash generated by the Company in any prior period, but would impact its reported results of operations as follows:

- If the Company is required to change its functional currency from the USD to the NIS for the second half of the year ended December 31, 2012, based on a preliminary analysis, the Company believes that the impact on revenue, gross profit and operating income for the 2012 fiscal year compared to its reported results will not be material; however, the Company believes that there will be a material increase in finance expenses, net, given that the Company kept its cash and short-term deposits in USD and hedged its exposure to currency fluctuations on the basis that its functional currency was the USD and not the NIS. During the second half of 2012, the USD depreciated by 5.3% against the NIS.
- The Company cannot currently make a reasonable estimate of the impact on its results of operation for the 2013 fiscal year if the Company is required to change its functional currency from the USD to the NIS for that year. The primary reason that the Company cannot make a reasonable estimate is that the change in functional currency impacts a large number of transactions and the Company's new Oracle Enterprise Resource Planning (ERP) system, which was implemented in April 1, 2013, was customized solely with USD as its functional currency. Nevertheless, based solely on its preliminary analysis of the impact on the second half of the 2012 fiscal year and without specific analysis as to 2013, the Company believes that the impact on revenue, gross profit and operating income for the 2013 fiscal year compared to its reported results should not be material; however, the Company believes that the impact on finance expenses (income), net, may be more significant given that the Company kept its cash and short-term deposits in USD and hedged its exposure to currency fluctuations on the basis that its functional currency was the USD and not the NIS. During 2013, the USD depreciated by 7.0% compared to the USD.
